

This year, 2008, is a very important year for Ireland, for Europe, and for democracy at large. It is expected that the Irish people will have the only voice, the only vote, on the proposed EU reformed treaty. This is arguably the most important treaty since Versailles, and only the people of Ireland get a vote! Not that many more voted on Versailles in 1919. Europe has a way of passing imperialist, undemocratic legislation that causes devastating effects for its peoples without any say by the people.

This year and this time we have a say. All those who purport to support democracy, to support sovereignty or those who simply care about a better health, education or transport service, vote NO to this reformed treaty and stand up and be counted. This is our year, and we will fight.
